PROFILE

Colonel (Ret.) PhD Aurel Mircea ROMOCIA, associate professor at the University of Oradea, conflictologist, mediator and legal advisor, has gained significant experience in amicable dispute resolution, public relations and international relations. This was achieved especially during the last 15 years of his military career, as well as after transitioning to the reserve (03/2016), following specialized training through various domestic and international courses.

He has experience in Public Affairs (NATO concept) and Civil Affairs (US concept), including two deployments in theaters of operations: Bosnia (2003) as a CIMIC officer in SFOR (Stabilisation Force), and Afghanistan (2005) as head of a ministerial engagement team within the Civil Affairs Division of CFC-A.

Between 2007 and 2011 he was head of the civil-military cooperation and public relations structure within SEEBRIG, with the headquarters deployed in Istanbul, Turkey, and later in Larissa, Greece. He created a new public affairs system for the multinational force, including a magazine — STARS Informer — and, as an editor, obtained "Seals of Approval" for this publication.

An active anti-aircraft artillery and missile officer from 1987 until his transition to the reserve, he studied engineering and law. Living through the end of the communist period in Romania and the subsequent transition led him to deeply study modern history.
